FORAKER MEMORIAL.

Cincinnati, O., June 13.—More than 2,000 persons attended the mass memorial meeting held here last Sunday in honor of the late Joseph Benson Foraker, formerly United States Senator.

A most eloquent plea for the protection of the American Negro from lynching, burning, disfranchisement and segregation was voiced by Attorney Glichrist Stewart, of New York City, in an address. Mr. Stewart was an assistant to the late Senator Foraker in the investigation of the alleged raid by colored soldiers at Brownsville, Texas.

Rev. R. C. Ransom of New York, editor of the African Methodist Review, also made a masterful address. Dr. Ransom told of the loyalty of the Negro from the time of Crispus Attucks on the Boston commons down to Carrizal. He was interrupted by vociferous storms of applause many times during his speech.

HOLY ROLLERS ARRESTED.

Memphis, Tenn.—Two colored women, giving their names as Martha McCoy and Mary Johnson, were arrested last night on South Wellington street by Officers Broadfoot and Bryant, on a charge of disorderly conduct. The women suffered the hallucination that "Jesus is coming today." They danced about the public station and shouted at the top of their voices.

LINCOLN INSTITUTE THREATENED.

tributed by the Negro troops of the 62d and 65th regiments, United States infantry, whose first thought when discharged from service was to establish in Missouri a school where their children could obtain a useful education. In 1880 the institution was transferred to the state and since then it has been generously provided for by the state legislature. That President Allen is held in high esteem by the leading white citizens of the state as well as by the Colored citizens is evidenced from the following letter appearing in the Daily Capital of Jefferson City of the issue of June 19th from one of the most distinguished educators in the state:

Editor Capital News:

The announcement was made in one of our local papers last Saturday that the board of regents of Lincoln Institute had not so far been able to elect a faculty and that politicians had succeeded in deferring the re-election of President B. F. Allen. I confess the announcement awakened not only my surprise, but something more—something bordering on indignation. Reading further we learned that a Negro politician at Kansas City has been active in opposing President Allen on the ground that he is a Republican. Any ground of opposition more preposterous than that can not be conceived, and any more effective way to utterly wreck the good name and the good work of this successful and valuable institution has not yet made appearance. If pretty and pernicious politics are henceforth to dominate in the management of this highly important institution no more serious harm can befall it, and the hopes of its best friends will surely suffer disastrous eclipse. The truth is, a school of advanced learning is no place for the incompetent and meddling politician—let him confine himself to the congenial sphere of ward politics.

I am highly pleased to say that for one and twenty years I have known President Allen more or less intimately. I have during all these years visited the Institute from time to time. My own long experience as a college president and my present position as a trustee in two of the leading colleges of Missouri qualifies me, I think, to speak with judgment on college work and college efficiency. I venture, therefore, to say that all the work done under the eye and hand of President Allen is good work, and well merits the highest approval.

I always take pleasure in attending the commencement and similar exercises of Lincoln Institute, and I do not hesitate to say that they compare favorably in this regard with the average high school and college of the present day.

If these statements are true, and this beneficent institution has for years, under President Allen's administration, been accomplishing such praiseworthy results, is it the wise and just thing now to take from him his insignia of office, strip him of all authority and send him like a disgraced commander to the rear? In the name of justice and fair play, I a long-time citizen of Missouri protest. The old Latin words are always timely: "Fiat Justitia ruat cælum."

Very respectfully yours,

JOHN FENTON HENDY.

The Sun has no axes to grind nor selfish interests to serve when it solemnly asserts that it believes the best interests of the school, the state and the Negroes of the state of Missouri will be subserved by the retention of Benjamin Franklin Allen in the presidency of this historic institution and that politics may no more be permitted to dwarf and disfigure the usefulness of this much needed institution any more than it would the magnificent institution located at Columbia for the education of the white youth of this great commonwealth. The Sun regrets that this vicious and unwarranted fight upon this institution emanated from Kansas City and assures the Board of Regents and the Governor that not fifty Colored men in Missouri can be found who will endorse the charges (if they be called charges), placed against President Allen by an unwise politician with over-weening ambitions. Let President Allen remain!

Chicago, Ill.—The trial of Oscar De Priest, former Alderman of the Second Ward, was brought to a close when the jury at 1:20 this morning returned a verdict of "not guilty" in favor of Mr. De Priest. The ex-Alderman was charged with having conspired to protect gambling in his district. Attorneys Clarence Darrow and Edward H. Morris appeared for the defense. When the verdict was returned Mr. De Priest smiled, saying, "There could have been no other result."

After the testimony of Teehan Jones, chief witness for the state, to the effect that he had given Mr. De Priest $2,800 for his services in protecting gambling in the "Black Belt," it was conceded by many legal lights that the case would be thrown out. Jones was subjected to a gruelling cross-examination from the defendant's counsel.
